

PUNISH FILIPINOS, GEN. MILLS SAYS

Severe Measures Needed
With Leaders, Followers
Deserve Leniency.

Larger Force, Better Pay
and Restored Canteen, Among Recommendations.

Brig. Gen. A. L. Mills, commanding the department of the Visayas, Philippine islands, in his annual report to the War Department for the fiscal year ended June 30 last, after making what has come to be the stereotyped recommendation for larger clerical and enlisted forces, increased pay, and the restoration of the canteen as the solution of the temperance problem, recounts the experience he and his troops had during the year in putting down the Pulajanes and other disturbing tribes in Samar and Leyte.

General Mills states that at the beginning of the year good order reigned on the islands of Panay, Negros, Cebu, and Bohol, and continued for the most part throughout the year, while in Samar and Leyte conditions of marked disorder existed and were somewhat difficult to remedy. The campaigns in the early part of the year were covered in reports of General Lee and Colonel Williams, his predecessors.

Islands Divided Into Zones.
The general plan of operations in both islands, General Mills says, has been the same—the division of each into districts or zones commanded by an officer to whom was assigned the special task of preserving order in it. Combined movements of all the troops were then ordered, with the object of keeping the enemy moving, preventing his gathering in large numbers at any time, destroying his supplies and means of subsistence in the mountains, and forcing him into the valleys and inhabited parts where he could be more easily proceeded against by other troops, the constabulary, and the volunteers.

Punish Leaders Severely.
An insight into the character of the ordinary Filipino is given by General Mills thus:

"It is impossible to avoid a certain sympathy with the ordinary Filipino in these outbreaks, for, though he may be fanatical and often is bloodthirsty, he is very ignorant and is totally under the domination of his leaders. A reasonable generosity in dealing with this class of people should be encouraged. It is thought, but not so with the leaders who incite them, who are outlaws by choice, and should be shown no mercy, but should be vigorously prosecuted to the full extent of the law. Any less severe measure will result in inducing either them or equally vicious citizens to seek similar notoriety when the opportunity offers."

"Although I am not familiar with the evidence available in all particular cases, I have felt, from my knowledge of some, that perhaps more consistency has been shown in the prosecution of offenders meriting punishment in Leyte than has been the case in Samar."

BABY HAS ELEVEN TITLES, TO HAVE HUGE INCOME

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Eleven titles and many millions of dollars are the inheritance of the tiny Viscount Mountjoy, the newly born son and heir of the young Marquis of Bute.

The Marquis, who in 1905 married a beautiful but poor Irish girl, Augusta Bellingham, derives a huge income from the docks at Cardiff, where his principal residence, Cardiff Castle, is situated. The ten subsidiary titles attached to the marquisate are Earl of Windsor, Viscount Mountjoy, Baron Mount Stuart, Baron Cardiff, Earl of Dumfries, Viscount Ayr, Baron Crichton, Earl of Bute, Viscount Kingsburgh, and Baron Cumber and Inchmarnock.

Mosquitoless Eden Despite Standard Oil

Refuse Filters Into River At Cleveland, Saving Town's Money Though Trust Does Its Best To Prevent Waste.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 24.—Standard Oil, poor, mangled Standard Oil, has made Cleveland the mosquitoless Eden, the town is so declared Health Officer Friedrich, who insists on giving credit where credit is due.

But Standard Oil is no willing public benefactor. It irks the philanthropy it works, and does its best to unshoulder its kind offices toward a grateful community, but oil will persist in escaping from its Kingsbury run refinery and flowing down into the river. "Many people look upon the Standard Oil refinery as a nuisance," said Friedrich. "It may be to some, but as a matter of fact we must suffer a greater nuisance were it not in existence. Crossing the river this morning, I noticed that the water was oily. Some people in the car thought the oil came from the Standard works and declared that the city ought to get after the trust. Certainly too much oil ought not be permitted to gather in the river. "As a matter of fact, however, it is this oil that keeps mosquitoes away from Cleveland. Other cities along the lakes suffer very much from mosquitoes at this period of the year. Cleveland is practically free from them."

"The oil from Standard Oil keeps them away. You know in New Jersey and elsewhere the people spend thousands of dollars for oil in an effort to exterminate the pest. Were it not for the Standard plant here I would not be surprised but that some such expenditure would be necessary here. Yes, I believe the Standard plant has been a good thing for Cleveland, particularly with reference to the mosquito question."

Occasionally when the oil gathers in too large quantities the fire department notifies the refinery, and men are sent along the river to scoop the oil up. It tries hard to prevent the escape of oil, but it will filter away.

PEACE MEN KILL ANOTHER PROPOSAL

United States, Germany, and Japan Against Obligatory Arbitration.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 24.—There is every reason to believe that the obligatory arbitration proposal, which is M. Bourgeois' pet hobby, will be disposed of Monday. America is against it and Germany has been thoroughly convinced that it was impossible from the beginning.

Then Japan does not like anything that bears the title compulsory, so there is no question about the proposal being doomed.

The permanent court is the solution of the whole matter. It would be a foundation for obligatory arbitration which now has no foundation. Until the permanent court has been provided for, it is useless to talk about obligatory arbitration.

England and Portugal made an effort to relieve the situation by presenting a list of subjects upon which arbitration should be compulsory, but Germany would have none of them.

The United States delegation has been instructed not to vote on the lists and insist upon the permanent court and general arbitration.

SIGHT OF ELEPHANTS KILLS JERSEY HORSE

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Aug. 24.—"Bill," a sorrel horse owned by W. H. Campbell, was "skeery," especially at elephants. There was a circus in town. In the procession were four elephants. Campbell tried to go by the elephants with the sorrel. As the animal came opposite the elephants it dropped dead.

MRS. CHARLOTTE WILMOTT
FAINTS IN PLAYHOUSE
While witnessing the performance at the National Theater last night Mrs. Charlotte Wilmott, a widow, living at the Llewellyn apartment house, at Twenty-third and M streets northwest, was taken suddenly ill and fainted.

Dr. J. A. Gannon, who was occupying a box was hastily called, and the Emergency Hospital ambulance summoned. An examination showed that her condition was not serious.

AMZI SMITH DEAD; SENATE ATTACHE

Had Served as Superintendent of Document Room
Forty Years.

Known to Nearly All Who
Had Business in North Wing.

After an illness lasting two weeks, Amzi Smith, for forty years the superintendent of the document room of the Senate, died at his residence, 214 Maryland avenue northeast, last night.

While it was generally known that Mr. Smith was seriously ill, the end came as a distinct shock to the members of his family. As yet no funeral arrangements have been made.

Mr. Smith filled the position of superintendent of the document room of the Senate for a longer time than nearly any other occupant of that position. He had a wonderful memory which helped him greatly in his work. Many of the improved methods now in vogue in the office were the result of his careful investigation and study.

Mr. Smith was born in West Newton, Pa., August 25, 1845, dying one day before his sixty-fourth birthday. He resided in this city for about twenty-six years.

Mr. Smith has been for many years one of the best-known figures in the Capitol. He was acquainted with almost every Senator and Representative and there was scarcely a person whose business required his presence on the Senate side of the building who did not have a speaking acquaintance with him.

Mr. Smith was a member of the Church of the Reformation. He was deeply interested in all religious matters. A wife and four children, two sons and two daughters, survive him.

BUCKETSHOP WARFARE TO BE KEPT UP MONDAY

Renewed efforts to round up bucket shops are expected to be made by officials of the District Attorney's office tomorrow morning.

It was learned yesterday that a number of supposed operators of bucket shops had thought it advisable to "seek cover," and there was noticed on at least one so-called brokerage office yesterday a placard reading "closed temporarily."

Cheesley & Spence, Wade & Hedges, Frank Kane & Co., and Allison C. Jenkins, it is understood, will open for business tomorrow morning, as they did today, asserting they are doing a legitimate business, and that the threat that each day they remain open after the raid, provided their business is irregular, will be treated as a separate offense and subject to fine, as such, has no terrors for them.

AFTER THAT BIG FINE
JUDGE LANDIS IS ILL

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—Judge K. M. Landis is said to be ill at the farm of his brother, Congressman C. C. Landis, near Delphi, Ind. The judge is suffering from a nervous affliction caused by overwork and the excitement incident to his duties within the last three months.

He recently visited his mother at Indianapolis and there it was found that he was quite ill and the trip to Delphi was undertaken in the hope of finding a retired place where he might recuperate.

John's Friend Jabs Girl Who Jolted Jilted John

Her Hints About Her Popularity Get Her
Nothing But a Cool Farewell on a Very Hot Day.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 24.—She climbed aboard a Euclid avenue car, encumbered with a straw satchel, hat box, umbrella, and all the rest of the impedimenta betraying that a pretty girl is going on a journey. From the tip of the hat's fluffy white plume to the toes of her smart tan shoes she was everything chic.

She settled herself in a vacant seat, disposed her belongings around her and seemed primness itself. A smile lit her face, however, as a young fellow more than well dressed hailed the motorman.

He was about to sit in the back seat to finish his half-smoked cigarette when he caught sight of the society winner. Alacrity itself, he clambered along the running board, finally taking the seat beside the girl with an air of proprietorship.

This begins like a real, simon pure Robert W. Chambers romance, doesn't it? But it isn't.

"Well, where's John?"

"Well, where's John?" he began with an air of gentle banter.

"John?" she exclaimed. "Hadden't you heard? Why, we have been divorced for eighteen months, and you never knew it. John was a real nice fellow too, but he only made bread and butter, and one has to have cake, don't you know?" with a sigh, "so I just had to leave him."

"You don't say," murmured the youth with a deprecating air.

"Oh, by the way, did you know that mother has nervous prostration? The telephone calls and the men who come to see me just make her so nervous that I don't know what to do."

"I hope she gets well," interjected the young man.

"Oh, I don't think she will," she said quickly. "And do you know that I was in New York all winter, and John didn't see me until the day I left. He was audacious enough to come down and see me off at the train. If he hasn't got the nerve! He actually telegraphed me his congratulations when I got my degree. But John loves me."

No Cause for Wonder.

A faint murmur, "I don't wonder."

"Yes, I had to leave him, and I hear he is scrambling around trying to get a lot of money. He thinks he'll get me back, but he won't. Did you hear about Lil? She got a divorce for the same thing that I did. You used to say that you had no use for Lil. Well, she warned me against you, all right—she told me that you talked just awfully about me."

"How could I?" said he.

"You're awfully nice to say so, but I never know when you men are telling the truth. I've got to get off here, and carry this heavy satchel all the way to the station."

He assisted her to alight, and then, while she stood looking expectantly at him raised his hat, and, calling "Good-by," resumed his seat on the car. A smile of triumph played around the corner of his mouth, and he said, half aloud, "That helps even up for John a little, I'm thinkin'."

ASSAULT VICTIM DIES; CASE PUZZLES POLICE

John Howard, colored, who has been in an unconscious condition in Freedmen's Hospital since a week ago Thursday, died at 10 o'clock last night.

Charged with having made an assault on Howard, Claiborne Johnson, colored, was arrested, and is now held in the jail. Johnson, the police say, admitted he struck Howard in the face during a quarrel and that the latter fell, striking his head on the pavement.

The case was one of the most puzzling that has ever been brought to the attention of the doctors at the hospital. Howard was found in an unconscious condition on the street and sent to the Homeopathic Hospital in an ambulance. The doctors decided he was suffering from alcoholism, and he was sent to the station house.

Later he was taken to Freedmen's. It was thought he was suffering from a fractured skull, but there was no evidence of his having received any injury to his head.

The body was taken to the morgue, where an autopsy will be performed today. An inquest will be held tomorrow.

HER SIGHT RESTORED AFTER FOURTEEN YEARS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—Restoration of her sight to Mrs. Susanna Freese, eighty years old, as the result of an accidental blow on the temple at the hands of her grandson, Harry Mausue, is being hailed by her friends as the wonder of the age. After being blind for fourteen years she has completely gained her sight.

The blow was administered by the boy, a student in a military school, while going through the tactics with his gun. Gradually the film which had covered Mrs. Freese's eyes began to clear. She did not reveal the miracle until relatives commented upon the changed appearance of her eyes.

CAPTAIN CLOVER REPORTS ON WASHINGTON'S TRIAL

Capt. Richardson Clover, president of the board of inspection and survey, reports relative to the speed trial of the Washington Friday, off Newport, that she made under forced draft for four hours an average speed of 21.33 knots, and under natural draft for eight hours an average speed of 15.33 knots.

He adds that the gun trials were successful.

MOORISH REBEL PROCLAIMED RULER

Pretender Able to Give Sultan Hard Fight For Throne.

TANGIER, Aug. 24.—A fierce struggle for the Moroccan throne is expected here after the action of Mouley Hafid in proclaiming himself sultan. His announcement was made in Morocco City a week ago, following his being hailed as ruler by his followers, according to advices brought today by a courier from that city.

The tribes of southern Morocco are rallying to the standard of Mouley Hafid and it is expected Abd-El-Asis, the present Sultan, will have a hard fight to hold his throne against his relative. The proclaiming of Mouley Hafid as sultan was accomplished with great ceremony, according to today's advices. A salute of four guns marked his assumption of the throne and there was a notable review of his army.

Cheftains of half a dozen of the fiercest and most warlike tribes immediately paid their homage and promised their aid in ousting Abd-El-Asis from his throne.

Mouley Hafid is reported to be now on his way with a strong force to command the Moors besieging Casablanca. A fierce attack on the European army there is expected on his arrival.

Mouley's army is reported to be well armed and supplied with abundant ammunition, making the movement to place him on the throne formidable.

TOOK A TUMBLE. William Denty, colored, eighteen, employed as a deck hand on the steamer Estelle Randall, accidentally fell overboard from the upper deck while the boat was lying at the N street wharf yesterday afternoon. He was pulled out of the water by another deck hand.
